

Embark on an Estuarine Odyssey

Celebrate National Estuaries Day by participating in Estuary Live—a live, free, interactive field trip over the Internet. Classrooms across the country will tour seven estuaries over the course of two days, asking questions of the trained naturalist and educators leading the expeditions. Field trip leaders respond to the students during the live broadcast.

For information on how to participate, a complete schedule and classroom materials, visit estuaries.gov. Bookmark the site for more information coming this summer!

Estuary Live . Thursday, September 23, 2004 and Friday, September 24, 2004

National Estuaries Day
Saturday, September 25, 2004

National Estuaries Day is a Coast Week celebration to promote the importance of estuaries and the need to protect them. The feature event—Estuary Live—is a collaborative effort between NOAA's National Estuarine Research Reserve System, EPA's National Estuary Program and many local partners.

